

JOURNAL OF DIDACTICS OF PHILOSOPHY (JDPh)
NEW JOURNAL / CALL FOR PAPERS

We launch a new journal this year: the Journal of Didactics of Philosophy (JDPh). We are issuing an open call for contributions.

The JDPh is a peer-reviewed academic journal devoted to research on the teaching and learning of philosophy. It will be published online twice a year starting from 2017. Articles may be about any level of education, however the main focus is on high school philosophy.

We welcome work with a philosophical or normative approach as well as reports of results from empirical qualitative and quantitative research. The journal also publishes reviews of books, textbooks and other educational material of international interest as well as country reports.

For further information please consult the webpage:

Please send your article in English as well as an abstract in an electronic document (word, pdf) by email to one of the editors.

With kind regards,
